monsters have taken many forms across time and cultures yet within these variations monsters often evoke the same paradoxical response disgust and desire we simultaneously fear monsters and take pleasure in seeing them and their role in human culture helps to explain this apparent contradiction monsters are created in order to delineate where the acceptable boundaries of action and emotion exist however while killing the monster allows us to cast out socially unacceptable desires the prevalence of monsters in both history and fiction reveals humanity s desire to see and experience the forbidden we seek write about and display monsters as both a warning and wish fulfilment and monsters therefore reveal that the line between desire and disgust is often thin looking across genres subjects and periods this book examines what our conflicted reaction to the monster tells us about human culture this book focuses on the end of four centuries of ottoman rule in bosnia and herzegovina in the 1870s after an introduction to the region and the political zeitgeist of the late 1860s and early 1870s it examines in detail the dramatic years beginning in the summer of 1875 when the outbreak of violent unrest in the eastern herzegovinan region bordering montenegro led to a massive refugee catastrophe the study traces the surprising further political and social dynamics to the summer and fall of 1878 when a habsburg army finally invaded the bosnian vilayet and took control of the province but only after months of fighting against massive local resistance throughout the province this book cannot be viewed in isolation from larger political dynamics which are also constantly present in this study as they unfolded however as this book attempts to show it is hardly possible to understand the often contradictory effects of these larger political dynamics without delving deeper into the complex local rationalities and constraints on the action of the actors involved in them the end of ottoman rule in bosnia will appeal to students teachers and researchers in late ottoman and bosnian history
